QUESTION OF: Safeguarding Presidential Elections in Less Economically Developed Countries (LEDC's)

MAIN SUBMITTER: Republic of Korea

CO-SUBMITTER: Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Mexico, Italy, Colombia, China, Germany, Colombia, South Africa, United Kingdom, D.R. Congo, Republic of Cuba

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

Expressing concern about the talk over the large influence on LEDC's political development,

Reminding delegates about the repercussions that could occur if too much influence is exerted on not only the countries but also the people of LEDC's,

Bearing in mind that all member states choose their own type of government,

Taking into account the right of all member states to not have other member or non-member states interfering with the election results,

1. Calls for the minimisation of influence on the LEDC's, while making sure that all countries get to choose the form of government they desire we plan to make this happen by:
 - a. Urging all member states to spend a small amount of taxes on the international body further explained in the next clause;
2. Recommends for the creation of an independent body composed of both international and local experts to ensure a fair political process, which will:
 - a. safeguard elections it deems potentially fraudulent or corrupt
 - b. bring justice according to the country in question's laws to those not following the law concerning this question
 - c. ensuring any monarch if chosen, helps the people in the LEDC's and not make them suffer;
3. Supports the initiation of a training program for local officials by international advisors to ensure that the local government is able to conduct future elections without foreign intervention;
4. Encourages efforts into putting a halt to political violence and the spread of misinformation during elections in LEDC's;

5. Urges developed nations and international organizations to provide non-partisan financial and technical support to LEDCs to promote electoral fairness and integrity;
6. Empowers both outside and inside local initiatives striving for peaceful political process.
